

Paragon 25 Ranger

If the original 300hp, 37-knot Paragon 25 with its 26.5° deadrise, battleship build quality and cosy enclosed wheelhouse seems all a bit too sedate for you then take a look at the 25 Ranger.

Paragon says that it has always dreamed of making the 25 into an open boat, we assume for people who like the feeling of an exposed sportsboat or RIB and enjoy being dressed in waterproof clothing and getting doused with cold water at regular intervals.

In fact, Paragon lays down a challenge in their brochure, asking if you "dare" to be brave and opt for this boat over its cosy covered cousin. The Ranger has the same accommodation as the regular 25 but the deck is made for the owner who wants wind in their hair and the sting of salt in their eyes. It may not be quite as civilised as the wheelhouse version but it should be a lot of fun, if you're up for the challenge.

Art of Kinetik Antagonist

You don't have to look twice at this boat to realise that it is the latest offering from Serbian yard Art of Kinetik.

Slipping in just below the jaw-dropping Hedonist in the range, this 37ft glorified dayboat is all about relaxing and entertaining.

The moment you sink into one of the eight gorgeous sculpted seats in the cockpit you'll instantly recline into holiday mode, but you may have to sit up when the sterndrive Yanmar 370 diesels fire up and propel this craft to a bracing top speed of 42 knots.

The family resemblance to the original Hedonist is strong with its varnished mahogany hull, stainless steel windscreen surrounds and distinctive tapered stern. Quality is always high on Art of Kinetik's priority list and you should expect no different here.

Below decks, the yard says that the boat follows the same principles as its other models so that means an open-plan bachelor-pad feel with an enormous sofa-cum-berth and a tremendous shower for cooling off.
